Privacy Policy

C.A.R.S. maintains a strict policy of privacy with regards to our associates' private personal information.

We do not release information to other entities for any reason, unless specifically required to do so by the request of law or for other legal reasons with respect to the C.A.R.S. organization. We do not trade or sell information to other entities.

In addition, your information is held in strict privacy within the C.A.R.S. organization and is only accessed by those that require your information for a specific business purpose. Our associates are trained to understand the importance of confidentiality and respect for privacy. We have standards in place to protect your information and limit access. Associates, employees or any other representative of C.A.R.S. who violate these standards are subject to disciplinary measures including prosecution under the law.

Please remember to exercise caution when sending personal information over the phone or internet and when sending it through physical mail. C.A.R.S. will never ask you for personal information over the phone other than your name and phone number. C.A.R.S. will never ask for any of your information until they have completely identified themselves as a representative of the organization. You have the right to refuse giving this information over the phone or internet.

I have read and understand this Privacy Policy. I also agree to uphold this privacy policy in regards to any other associate or representative for C.A.R.S.
